

Heinz Rutishauser

Early Swiss computer scientist who worked on Konrad Zuse's Z4 and developed his own two-dimensional programming system Plankalkul—not to be confused with Zuse's own earlier system of the same name.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Biographical

Bauer, Friedrich L., "Between Zuse and Rutishauser-The Early Development of Digital Computing in Central Europe," in Metropolis, N., J. Howlett, and Gian-Carlo Rota, A History of Computing in the Twentieth Century, Academic Press, New York, 1980, pp. 505-524.

Schwartz, H.R., "The Early Years of Computing in Switzerland," Ann. Hist. Comp., Vol. 3, No. 1, 1981, pp. 121-132.

Significant Publications

Rutishauser, H., et al., Programmgesteuerte Digitale Rechengerate (Elektronische Rechenmaschinen), Mitt. Aus dem Inst. f. Angewandte Mathematik an der E. T. H., Zurich, Vol. 2, 195 1.

UPDATES

Heinz Rutishauser was born 30 January 1918 in Weinfelden, Switzerland and died on 10 November 1970 in Zurich (MRW 2012). Portrait added (MRW, 2013).