Abstract: This report reproduces three previously-published papers on the Ethernet local-area communications network:

The first paper introduces the Ethernet-style network, a multi-access broadcast packet-switched communication system, and presents the theory (CSMA/CD) that underlies it. The second paper discusses the design and implementation of the prototype Ethernet system, and the final paper presents performance results based on several years' practical experience with that system.